

It is Good (O, Most High) Psalm 92

All:

It is good to sing your praises—to give thanks to you, most high
To declare thy lovingkindness from the morning to the night
On an instrument resounding with the strings, and with my voice
All your works have made me so glad that I sing and I rejoice

Chorus: (All):

O, Most high—O most high; O, Most high—O most high

Verse 2:

All your works are filled with glory—all your thoughts, an ocean deep
Only fools deny the story—I will wake them from their sleep
It is good to sing your praises—to give thanks to you, most high
To declare thy lovingkindness from the morning to the night

Repeat Chorus (all)

Verse 3: Men Sing Verse

Women Switch to Descant ("O Most High...")

Though your enemies may flourish like the grass or morning dew
After all the wicked perish I will lift my hands to you
It is good to sing your praises—to give thanks to you, most high
To declare thy lovingkindness from the morning to the night
I will rise to you, o most high, like a tree in Lebanon
I will show how true my God is—I will lift a righteous song

All (no descant):

It is good to sing your praises—to give thanks to you, most high
To declare thy lovingkindness from the morning to the night
On an instrument resounding with the strings and with my voice
All your works have made me so glad that I sing and I rejoice

Chorus All
